

Grosvenor Garden Centre, Armistice Day - 11th November 2018

About twenty-six riders gathered on what was a wet Sunday morning at the bus stop opposite the Eureka. Our leader Glenn advised that he had changed the route owing to lots of debris on the road through Puddington and on to Burton - also the pathway along the Dee was covered in sheep muck, so he decided we would proceed Red Dragon Bridge then along the Greenway to Hawarden Bridge where we would proceed along the River Dee path as intended.

By the time we left the weather had changed and we had a very pleasant day with a faster route. Glenn led Number 1 Group and Helen led the Number 2 Group.

Number 2 group can be seen arriving at Saltney Ferry, while some mechanical repairs were carried out, it was here that we stood silently to observe the 2-minute silence in memory of those who had fallen in WW1.

Afterwards we proceeded along the Greenway, past the Chester Race Course to the Groves where we had a comfort stop.

We WALKED over the Grosvenor Foot Bridge and then along the Roman Road to Eccleston Village, turned right under the bridge and enjoyed the beautiful view that you suddenly see.

Grosvenor Garden Centre was just a short distance along the main road. Glenn had reserved tables for us which was just as well, as the place was very busy.

The return home was along the Long Mile to Poulton, Dodleston, the birth place of Sir Thomas Egerton who rose to importance during the later years of Queen Elizabeth 1st. He could have been buried in either St. Paul's or Westminster Abbey, but chose St. Mary's Church, Dodleston.

When we arrived back at Saltney Ferry the groups divided and went different ways back to the Eureka.

A very interesting and enjoyable ride with our thanks to Glenn, Helen, and Janet.

Text and photos by David C