

The Ridger, West Kirby - 29th November 2017

It's always difficult to plan interesting routes in the winter months since the destinations are never far away: never-the-less most leaders try to find something a little different. Brian L certainly succeeded last week, including some sections most had not ridden before. The day was cold with occasional sun and a bitter wind. Despite that, there was another large turnout - twenty-four, I think - so Richard took twelve on the longer route while Brian took those who preferred a slightly shorter route. The difference in mileage was exactly right - since the two merged in the last few hundred yards before the pub, despite both having some minor problems en route.

The sandwich and chips deal proved both popular and very good value and we were all fed and watered well within an hour - except the one person who ordered something different and who waited an age for his liver and onions!

Before we set off Peter took a photo of some of the Two Mills shirts (also Wednesday Riders) wearing his Rights Officer's hat to show the powers that be riders' appreciation for the road and path developments opposite the Eureka.
